

Client: Seven Bar Foundation

Publication: Daily News

Date: October 25, 2010

Circulation: 535,059

► Walking a runway is no big deal when you can also run a marathon. Veronica Webb prepared for the catwalk at Thursday's Freedom Bay St. Lucia's Lingerie NY event with hair and makeup like all the other models — plus a little something extra. "I just got done icing my knees while I was getting my hair done," said the 45-year-old fashion veteran, who's running the New York City Marathon for the second time next month. But not even Webb's "marathon legs," which she told us she was happy to be showing off, could prevent a technical difficulty at the Cipriani 42 charity fete. Webb hit the runway in a Hennessy Black "Light Goddess" Corset with built-in LED panels — which lit up only erratically and at one point blinked off entirely. The audience didn't seem bothered, however: At the evening's dinner auction, the lightup lingerie went for $15,000.